Other Events

Revocation of Preliminary Order Suspending Effectiveness of Corporate Purpose Amendment

This Report on Form 6-K updates the Company's previous disclosures regarding the legal proceedings commenced by certain minority shareholders challenging the validity, and precautionary seeking suspension, of two shareholder resolutions, including the one regarding the corporate purpose amendment to Article 4 of the Company's bylaws, approved by the extraordinary shareholders' meeting held on October 29, 2025 (the "amendment").

By order dated July 9, 2026, (notified to Genenta Science S.p.A. (the "Company") on July 13, 2026, the Court of Milan granted the precautionary appeal filed by the Company and revoked the preliminary order previously issued on June 12, 2026 (notified to the Company on June 15, 2026), that had suspended the effectiveness of the amendment.

In particular, the Court determined that, at this preliminary stage, the Company's interest in maintaining the effectiveness of the amendment outweighs the alleged prejudice asserted by the plaintiffs. In reaching its decision, the Court noted, among other things, the significant investments already made by the Company in furtherance of its strategic initiatives, the market significance of those initiatives, and the Company's legitimate interest in avoiding a return to the strategic impasse that the amendment was intended to address. The Court also ordered that the registration of the previously issued suspension order be removed from the Italian Companies Register.

As a result of the Court's ruling, the amendment to the Company's corporate purpose is once again fully effective.

The underlying civil action challenging the validity of the shareholders' resolutions dated May 2, 2024, and October 29, 2025 remains pending before the Court of Milan, as the Court's July 9, 2026 order relates solely to the preliminary injunctive relief sought by the plaintiffs. The Company intends to continue to vigorously defend the validity of the challenged resolutions.
